Man's Profile

A complete profile optimization system — Tinder, Instagram, Badoo/Bumble, and the WhatsApp transition

Module 1 · Tinder

Module 2 · Instagram

Module 3 · Badoo/Bumble

Module 4 · WA

INTRODUCTION

Your profile works 24/7 — even when you're asleep

Most men leave matches on the table because their profile sends the wrong signal. This guide fixes each platform methodically.

> Profile optimization is the highest-ROI investment in dating. You do it once — and it works all the time. One afternoon of work can double or triple your match rate without changing who you are.

Each platform has a different function and different dynamics. Tinder = volume and speed. Instagram = world and context. Badoo/Bumble = more detailed profile, longer consideration time. WhatsApp = the transition to reality. This guide covers each one.

MODULE 1

Tinder — photos, bio, strategy

Main photo — the decision is made here

She sees your main photo for less than 1 second. Criteria: direct gaze, face clearly visible, natural expression, upper body in frame. Natural light, no flash.

- ✓ You're clearly the protagonist — not part of a group
- ✓ Natural expression — not a forced smile
- ✓ Context makes sense (location, clothing)
- ✗ Bathroom/gym mirror selfie
- ✗ Group photo where you're not clearly visible
- ✗ Photo with another woman (even as friend/sister)

Photos 2–6 — build a world

Bio — maximum 4 lines

Identity + contrast + specific detail + implicit invitation. Avoid adjectives without context. See Bio Formula for complete examples.

Instagram link

Only add it if your Instagram is strong (consistent grid, you're visible in photos, recent activity). A weak Instagram is worse than no link.

MODULE 2

Instagram — your world visible 24/7

The grid — first 9 photos

She goes through your grid before she accepts you into WA. The first 9 photos tell the story of who you are. Goal: at least 4 photos with you in them.

- ✓ At least 4 of the first 9 photos show you
- ✓ Activity or lifestyle visible — not just selfies
- ✓ Last post not older than 2–3 months
- ✗ Memes or reposted content as main grid
- ✗ Private profile (or fully locked down)

Bio

Shorter than Tinder bio. 2 lines max: who you are + one specific interest. Same principles apply — specific, not generic.

> "Architect. Finds the best coffee in every city."

Highlights

At least 2 relevant highlights: a trip, a hobby, events. These are an extended version of your bio — stories she can go through. Update regularly.

Stories

Stories are your real-time "world." 3 types that work: something you're currently doing (activity, travel), something funny or self-aware, something that creates curiosity. Avoid: food without context, random reposts.

MODULE 3

Badoo / Bumble — the profile that speaks for itself

Badoo specifics

Badoo weighs profile completeness more than Tinder. A complete profile gets significantly more visibility. Fill in everything: interests, profession, about me, verification.

- ✓ Profile 100% complete (all fields filled)
- ✓ Verified via phone or photo verification
- ✓ Interests: specific, not "travel, music, movies"
- ✓ Bio: 2–4 sentences, identity + contrast, open question at the end

Bumble specifics

On Bumble, she writes first. Your profile's job is to make her want to. Key: at least 3 "conversation doors" in the profile — things she can reference when she starts the conversation.

- ✓ Bio ending with an open invitation (she needs something to respond to)
- ✓ At least 3 specific things in profile she could mention
- ✓ Prompts filled with specific, non-generic answers
- ✗ Bio ending with nothing — she doesn't know what to write

MODULE 4

WhatsApp — the transition from app to reality

When to ask for her number

After 3–5 good exchanges on the app. Not before — it seems too fast. Not after 50 messages — you missed the window. The right moment: after a good exchange with natural energy, before it starts to fizzle.

> Exact phrase: "This conversation is better on WhatsApp. Drop me your number." — Direct, without excessive explanation. Not: "Would you maybe want to exchange numbers?" — that's too tentative.

Your WA profile

- ✓ Profile photo: you, natural light, matches your signal on apps
- ✓ Status: adds value or empty (not a weak quote)
- ✓ Last seen: set to "My contacts"
- ✗ "Hey there!" as the About (original WA default)

The first WA message

Don't start with "Hey, it's me [name]" — she knows. Don't start with "How are you?" — she's heard it 50 times today. Start with something specific: a reference to your conversation on the app, a question, or a photo that catches attention.

"[Reference to something you talked about on the app] — that place I mentioned. Check it out."

NEXT STEP

Profile is set. Now optimize systematically.
